CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE BULLETIN

11 December 1964

DAILY BRIEF

South Vietnam: Buddhist leaders are proceeding with their efforts to bring down the Huong government.

They have issued a new communiqué attacking the Premier. Earlier, their foremost strategist, the influential monk Tri Quang, told a US Embassy officer that he and Tam Chau, head of the Buddhist institute, had agreed on establishing a "struggle committee" of monks to work for Huong's resignation. He said the "struggle" might eventually include demonstrations by the Buddhist clergy.

In the meantime, according to Quang, the Buddhists will continue efforts to obtain Huong's retirement by pressure on the US and on those in a position to replace him legally. The embassy believes that Quang was trying to give an impression that Buddhist leaders were acting with restraint and setting no deadlines. Quang nevertheless gave no hint that the Buddhists would settle for anything less than Huong's ouster. 25X1
